Library Plans Suite for ALA

The Library of Congress will again have a Cataloging and Acquisitions in Person suite at the Annual Conference of the American Library Association in Dallas, Tex., this summer. Although the room number will not be available until the beginning of the conference, the suite will be located in the Adolphus Hotel, registered under the name of Henriette D. Avram, Assistant Librarian for Processing Services. The suite number will also be posted at the Library's exhibit booth.

The hours of operation of the Cataloging and Acquisitions in Person suite will be 8 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 to 5 p.m. from Saturday, June 24, through Tuesday, June 27.

Robert Fitzgerald Is Named New Consultant in Poetry

Robert Fitzgerald, distinguished poet and translator, has been named consultant in poetry by Librarian of Congress Daniel J. Boorstin. Mr. Fitzgerald, who succeeds Anthony Hecht as consultant, will assume his duties in the fall. The announcement of his appointment was made on Monday, May 7, during the Library's final program in the 1983–84 literary series.

Educated at Harvard University, where he earned a bachelor of arts degree in 1933, and at Trinity College, Cambridge, Mr. Fitzgerald began his career as a journalist. He worked as a reporter for the New York Herald Tribune in 1933–35 and as a writer for Time magazine in 1936–49, a period interrupted by service as a naval officer during World War II.

He published his first volume of poems in 1935, after a summer

at the MacDowell Colony in New Hampshire, and his first translation of Greek drama—Euripides' Alcestis—the following year. The latter was undertaken with Dudley Fitts, his former teacher at the Choate School and his frequent collaborator in years to come.

Mr. Fitzgerald began his teaching career at Sarah Lawrence College during the late 1940s and subsequently taught at Notre Dame, the University of Washington, Mount Holyoke College, and Harvard. In 1965, he was named Boylston professor of rhetoric and oratory at Harvard, succeeding a former Librarian of Congress, Archibald MacLeish, in that postion. He retired in 1981.

The Library of Congress Information Bulletin is issued weekly by the Library of Congress and distributed free of charge to publicly supported libraries and research institutions, academic libraries, learned societies, and allied organizations in the United States.

Comparable institutions and organizations in other countries may arrange to receive the Bulletin on the exchange basis by applying in writing to the Library's Exchange and Gift Division. All other correspondence should be addressed to the LC Information Bulletin, Information Office, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C. 20540.

In 1953, supported by his publisher and the Guggenheim Foundation, Mr. Fitzgerald began a period of long and frequent residencies in Italy, where he worked on the translation of Homer. The Odyssey, published in 1961, won the first Bollingen Award for Translation, and The Iliad, published in 1974, the first Landon Translation Award of the Academy of American Poets. In recent years, Mr. Fitzgerald has turned his attention to Virgil, and his highly praised translation of The Aeneid appeared in 1983. He has also translated works by Paul Valéry, Saint John Perse (Alexis Léger), and Jorge Luis Borges, among others.

Throughout his career as a translator, Mr. Fitzgerald has continued to write and publish his own poems, in which critics have noted influences of his classical studies. It is probably true that the two activities have been mutually beneficial. Following Poems, he published A Wreath for the Sea (1943), In the Rose of Time (1956), and Spring Shade: Poems, 1931–1970 (1971). He has also edited the collected prose of his friend James Agee and contributed to posthumous publications of Flannery O'Connor, of whom he is literary executor.

Numerous awards and honors have come to Robert Fitzgerald. He is a fellow of the National Institute of Arts and Letters and of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. Since 1968, he has also been a chancellor of the Academy of American Poets. He was twice a Guggenheim fellow and has received the Shelley Memorial Award from the Poetry Society of America. His work has also been supported by the Bollingen Foundation, the National Endowment for the Humanities, and the Ford Foundation.

Mr. Fitzgerald has had a long association with the Library of Congress. He recorded his poems and translations for the Library's archive of recorded poetry and literature in 1948 and from his translation of The Odyssey in 1974. In 1969, he was one of six chancellors of the Academy of American Poets to read at the Library in a program celebrating the 35th anniversary of the academy. In 1983, the lone survivor of the 1969 group, he was among 15 chancellors and former fellows who read in a memorable two-day program at the Library, celebrating the academy's 50th anniversary. Mr. Fitzgerald was also present in 1979 for a program with Richard Dyer-Bennet reciting from the Fitzgerald translation of The Odyssey.

The position of consultant in poetry was established at the Library in 1936 through the generosity of the late Archer M. Huntington. The consultant advises the Library on its literary programs, recommends writers to be recorded for the archive, and customarily presides at readings in the Coolidge Auditorium. Mr. Fitzgerald, the 27th person to hold the position, will initiate the fall season with a reading on October 1.

Representatives of State Libraries Visit Library for Orientation

More than 30 state libraries were represented by their chief officers or alternates at the Sixth Assembly of State Librarians, held at the Library of Congress on April 11–12. The group was welcomed to the Library by Associate Librarian for National Programs Carol A. Nemeyer.

Session one, "New Technologies in Preservation," was moderated by Peter G. Sparks, director of the Library's Preservation Office. Dr. Sparks showed a film entitled "Preservation: An Investment for the Future" and then gave a slide presentation on the Library's mass deacidification program. Joseph Price, chief of the Science and Technology Division and director of projects for the Optical Disk Pilot Program, gave an overview of that program and introduced Ellen Hahn, chief of the General Reading Rooms Division and manager of the Design Print Pilot Experiment and Future Access System Design Projects, and Carl Fleischhauer, American Folklife Center, manager of the Design Nonprint Pilot Experimentation Project. Following their slide presentations, tours of the Optical Disk Operations Center were conducted by Basil Manns, Automated Systems Office, who is managing the Print Contract Monitoring and Print Installation Acceptance Projects.

After a luncheon discussion with Deputy Librarian William J. Welsh, the group was treated to three short vintage films of the Library of Congress in the Mary Pickford Theater, and David Parker, Motion Picture, Broadcasting and Recorded Sound Division, provided commentary. Small group tours of the special collections divisions and of the Madison Building were conducted following brief remarks by John C. Broderick, Assistant Librarian for Research Services, and John Henry Hass, educational liaison officer.

Charles Bolles of Idaho, Gary Strong of California, and Joseph Andrews of Nevada.

Barbara Weaver of New Jersey and Sara Parker of Montana

A networking update was moderated by Ellen Hahn on Thursday morning. Henriette D. Avram, Assistant Librarian for Processing Services, spoke on the Linked Systems and the Name Authority Cooperative Projects. Olive James, chief of the Loan Division, spoke on recent developments in interlibrary loan, giving dramatic statistics about the improvements in turnaround time, increases in use of electronic mail and telefacsimile, and increases in number of data bases which the Library uses in responding to interlibrary loan requests. Carol Henderson, deputy director of the American Library Association's Washington office, spoke on telecommunications developments as they affect networks, particularly pending legislation that may affect libraries and networks. The final speakers were James Riley, executive director of the Federal Library Committee, and Marybeth Peters, policy planning advisor to the Register of Copyrights, who gave the history and current status of efforts by OCLC, Inc., to copyright its data base.

In the last 50 years, the role of the White House staff has changed so that names of leading presidential aides are often more familiar than those of most heads of the executive departments. As the functions of the federal government and the presidency have become more complex, presidents have turned to an inner grouping of trusted White House staff members for advice and assistance in directing the executive branch. This bibliography is a list of books about the White House staff in general and about certain leading aides to presidents from Franklin Roosevelt to Ronald Reagan.

Samuel Bryant Earns 20-Year Pin

Samuel Bryant, supervisor of the materials management unit, Network Services Section of the National Library Service for the Blind and Physically Handicapped (NLS/BPH), was presented a 20-year Federal Service Award pin by NLS/BPH director Frank Kurt Cylke on January 12.

Attending the ceremony were Mary Jack Wintle, assistant director; Mary Levering, chief of the Network Division; Elizabeth Carl, then acting head of Network Services Section; and other friends and colleagues who celebrated his achievement at a coffee held in his honor.

Following graduation from high school in Battleboro, N.C., Mr. Bryant moved to Washington, D.C., where he began his career at the Library in 1963 as a member of the labor force. After two years, he moved on to several positions handling publications in the Aerospace Technology Division and a brief assignment in the delivery unit of the Loan Division before joining the NLS/BPH staff in 1970. Since that time, he has held progressively responsible positions, all of them involving the servicing and shelving of the NLS/BPH book collections and the handling of a heavy volume of mail. His 20 years have been noted by frequent official recognition of his resourcefulness and his conscientious work.

Among the vicissitudes of Mr. Bryant's career thus far were jammed curtains that he tried to open years ago at the height of a dramatic performance in the Coolidge Auditorium and, more recently, an ill-timed snowfall as he was supervising the move of 11 truckloads of books transferring the Library's book collection to set up a multistate center in the Midwest. His coworkers know him as a remarkable problem solver who struggles on with humor in moments like these.

24 Affirmative Action Fellowships To be Awarded for Fiscal Year 1985

Applications for affirmative action fellowships for study during fiscal 1985, the year beginning next October 1, will be accepted during the month of May. The fellowships will be for one year's study and will carry a stipend of up to $1,200. Applicants will compete in the categories of undergraduate and graduate study. Applications will be considered for academic work leading to qualifications in the following job series only: social science analyst, foreign affairs analyst, research intelligence specialist, computer science specialist, administrative officer, copyright specialist, librarian, and technical information specialist.

Fellowships are offered for staff members in full-time or part-time permanent and indefinite positions who have completed 2,080 hours of Library service, equivalent to one year full-time, as of the closing date for the submission of applications. The amount of the fellowship for part-time members will be prorated according to the number of hours worked. The program is limited to staff members in grades GS-9 and below who are not in promotion plans that exceed the GS-9 level and do not possess a graduate degree. Staff members must be willing to participate in this academic training during off-duty hours. Specific details of application and selection procedures can be found in an announcement dated May 1 distributed to all staff members. All applications must be received in the affirmative Action Office, LM 603, by the close of the business day May 31.

Library Observes Memorial Day

The Library of Congress will observe Memorial Day on Monday, May 28. All reading rooms and study facilities will be closed. Regular Saturday and Sunday service will be provided on May 26 and 27. The exhibition halls in the Jefferson and Madison Buildings will be open from 8:30 a.m. until 6 p.m. on Monday, May 28.

Rally Kicks off 1984 Savings Bond Campaign at Library

William Anderson

Reba Burruss presents to Donna Wells, the bond drive keyworker in the Motion Picture, Broadcasting and Recorded Sound Division, a $50 Savings Bond donated by the Library's Welfare and Recreation Association. The bond was drawn as a door prize for participants who attended the rally for this year's campaign.

A rally in the Mumford Room on April 25 marked the kickoff of the Library's 1984 Savings Bond Campaign. The theme of this year's campaign, which will run the entire month of May, is "Join America's Financial Winners." National Library Service (NLS) for the Blind and Physically Handicapped assistant director Mary Jack Wintle is the vice chair of the Library drive.

The rally opened with music by guitarist William Anderson of NLS. Mary Jack Wintle then introduced the Associate Librarian Donald C. Curran, who thanked the Library's key workers. Arthur Maxwell of the U.S. Department of the Treasury then discussed the benefits of buying bonds. Deborah E. Moore of the Payroll Preparation Unit, Financial Management Office, explained to keyworkers the procedure for signing up for bonds so that they might in turn describe it to their colleagues.

Staff Activities

Members of the Law Library Association of Maryland met in the Law Library on April 19. Marlene C. McGuirl, chief of the American-British Law Division, spoke to the group and presented an overview of research methods and bibliographic sources in British law. The presentation was followed by a tour of Law Library facilities given by Robert Nay, assistant chief of the division, and reference librarians Doris Jensen and Steve Hinckley.

Grace B. Reed, executive officer of the Copyright Office, was nominated for the 1984 William A. Jump Award. She received a special certificate of recognition for her outstanding accomplishments and special contributions to the efficiency and prestige of public service. The William A. Jump Foundation sponsors this particular award in recognition of dynamic Federal service.

A. Kohar Rony, area specialist in the Asian Division, is the author of two published articles, "An Acquisition Trip to Sumatra" and "Remarks on Giok Po Oey's Survey of the Library of Congress Southeast Asia Collections." Both articles appear in CORMOSEA Bulletin. CORMOSEA is the Committee on Research Materials in Southeast Asia of the Association for Asian Studies.

Deidra Elizabeth Wade, shelflister in the shelflisting section of the Subject Cataloging Division, was selected as an Outstanding Young Woman of America for 1983. Ms. Wade was given the award by the Outstanding Young Women of America Organization in recognition of scholarship, leadership, and community service. Her activities include being a member of the minority prelaw society, a supervisor of intramural referees, and a member of the Red Cross as a CPR instructor. She was also named the University of Maryland Intramural Sports and Recreation Woman of the Year for 1981–82 and has coached intramural sports and club teams.

Chi Wang, head of the Chinese and Korean section in the Asian Division, chaired a panel entitled "Two Centuries of United States-China Relations" on March 23 during the 36th annual meeting of the Association for Asian Studies held recently in Washington, D.C. Among the speakers were Michael H. Hunt, professor of history at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, who presented an overview of U.S.-China relations during the past 200 years; Yu-ning Li, professor of history at St. John's University in Jamaica, N.Y., who spoke on social and intellectual interactions between the United States and China; John Witek, S.J., professor of history at Georgetown University, Washington, D.C., who gave a paper on American missionaries in China; Roger W. Sullivan, executive vice president at the National Council

News in the Library's Office in Brazil

Stephen Rosenblatt (below, left) is pleased with the publications that are stacked behind him which he acquired during his recent field trip to Manaus and Belém, Brazil. Mr. Rosenblatt, of the Acquisitions and Processing Division, Copyright Office, returned to the Library on April 16 after having been detailed to the Library's office in Rio de Janeiro for three months.

for U.S.-China Trade, Washington, D.C., who reviewed commercial and trade relations between the two countries; and Michael Oksenberg, professor of political science at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, who spoke on recent developments and future prospects of U.S.-China relations. Marilyn B. Young, professor of history at New York University, served as a discussant for the panel and commented on all five papers. More than 100 persons participated in this panel discussion. One of the main purposes of this panel was to commemorate the 200th anniversary of Sino-American relations, which commenced when the Empress of China sailed from New York to China on February 22, 1784.

Mr. Wang is also the author of an article entitled "The Chinese Collection in the Library of Congress: A Brief Introduction," which was contained in the recently published Proceedings of the First Asian-Pacific Conference on Library Science. This conference was held in Taipei, Taiwan, from March 13-19, 1983. Mr. Wang was invited to participate in the conference and delivered this paper on the Library's Chinese collection.

Scholars Colloquium Planned

The next Scholars Committee Colloquium will be held on Tuesday, May 22, at 2:30 p.m. in the Wilson Room. Leonard Baker, Pulitzer Prize winner for biography and author of the recently published Brandeis and Frankfurter—A Dual Biography, will speak on "Louis D. Brandeis, Felix Frankfurter, and the Franklin D. Roosevelt Administration." Legend and many historians have Brandeis and Frankfurter as the powers behind the Roosevelt administration. Supposedly, the two men staffed the New Deal and pulled the strings of power through their surrogates. Is this an accurate picture? Mr. Baker will examine the records and attempt to answer that question.

One of the Library's most popular exhibits is now on display on the ground floor of the Thomas Jefferson Building. The 41st Annual White House News Photographers Association Exhibition contains 163 color and black-and-white photographs, along with video played continuously on three screens. The photographs and video coverage reflect the events and the persons who made the news in 1983. Subjects are not limited to the president and include other categories such as personality, picture story, news, sports, pictorial, and feature.
